The subtotal of the number of clients in this section would be misleading and is not shown. (e.g. It is possible for the same client to have multiple appointment types (like both an intake and a regular therapy appointment) so they would be counted on more than one row. A total that summed up all the values in that column would count the same client multiple times. The sum of the percent of clients column may add up to more than 100% for the same reason.

The number of sessions is the number of appointments that had at least one client matching the attendance filter. If you are running the report for Attended only and no client attended that session, it will not be counted.
